

You're Moving Up and It Shows!
These new pins are awesome! Set your goal on the one you want and chart your course to obtain it!

Running the Race

written by Independent Beauty Consultant, Alisha Woodcox of Rochester, Ind.

The butterflies in my stomach have started to dance.
I'm stepping out of my comfort zone and taking the chance.
There's a race to be run and a challenge to take.
A journey that many are too fearful to make,
Others have gone before me and have paved the way.
I'm not waiting any longer - I'm starting today!
I've heard of the bumps and stones and hurdles tall,
Of the obstacles that arise to make us fall.
And though the path may be narrow, up and down, and long,
I am excited, focused and determined to stay strong!
I will endure to the end - I have faith, I have trust.
I keep telling myself, "I can, I will, I must!"
Yet the course doesn't seem so rough or so far to the end,
When you're running with support and the hand of a friend.
See, I'm not running alone - I'm part of a team.
Some are running for fun - some to accomplish a dream.
Well, I have a dream, a goal, a plan of attack.
While those who don't have started to slack.
Some have lagged behind and some have quit,
But I refuse to slow down, to stop or to sit.
The power to keep going and strength I find,
Is not in my legs, but all in my mind.
From negativity and doubt I've chosen to be numb,
Forgetting what is behind and focusing on what is to come.
I'll plunge again into the valley and I'll continue in the race,
For there is so much to accomplish and so much to embrace.
And when I've reached that highest mountain
and my climb is finally done,
I'll look back over what I've achieved and know my race is won!

"All who have accomplished great things have had a great aim and fixed their gaze on a goal which was high, one which sometimes seemed impossible."

- Orison Swett Marden